

Manny Rodriguez becomes National President

On January 20, 2004, National President, Richard Barnes, officially resigned as National President of Alpha Phi Delta Fraternity. Shortly thereafter, Central Office notified the undergraduate members and the executive committee on his resignation.

As per the constitution and bylaws of Alpha Phi Delta Fraternity, Inc., Manuel Rodriguez will assume the position of National President for the remainder of the term, ending August 31, 2004.

National President, Manuel Rodriguez, conducted a conference call on Thursday, January 22, 2004 with the executive committee. He detailed the current situation facing the fraternity and requested the full cooperation of his executive board in the months ahead. In an effort to communicate with the Fraternity, Brother Rodriguez is going to conduct several conference calls prior to the Spring 2004 National Council meeting.

Brother Rodriguez has served the Fraternity for several years. He served his chapter (Gamma Sigma/SJU -SI) as chapter president, was an assistance district governor for New York City, was elected as New York City District Governor for two years, and elected Executive Vice President in 2002 and 2003.

Spring 2004 National Council

The National Fraternity will conduct its annual business meeting on Saturday, March 27, 2004 at the campus of Youngstown State University, located in Youngstown, Ohio, just 45 minutes west of Pittsburgh.

The Fraternity will elect a new president, executive vice president, and vice president for undergraduate affairs. Anyone planning on perusing any of these positions should forward a Candidacy letter to Central Office by February 11, 2004. Candidacy letters will be distributed in the delegate packages for review.

Any proposals for legislation or membership, likewise, should be mailed to central office by February 11, 2004.

Two delegates from each chapter, and one delegate from each alumni association are required to attend the meeting. A registration form will be mailed to each chapter with the March 2004 edition of the Chapter Letter.

For hotel reservations, please contact the Fairfield Inn at 330-726-5979. When calling, mention Alpha Phi Delta to receive the rate of $62 per night.

The March 2004 edition of the Chapter Letter will contain additional details.

New Member Packages

Some members initiated during the Fall 2003 and Spring 2003 semesters may not have received their shingle and membership card. This was caused by a miscommunication with our supplier.

Additionally, badge pins for the Spring 2003 new members will be mailed in February directly from Central Office. The Fall 2003 pins will be mailed directly from the manufacture in April.

If you feel you did not received your new member package in its entirety, please contact Central Office and we will produce a new package for you.

Please accept our apologies in advance.

5 Sentenced in Fatal Hazing at Plattsburgh

New York Times
January 28, 2004

By LISA W. FODERARO

Three of the 11 men charged in a fatal fraternity hazing at the State University of New York at Plattsburgh in March were sentenced yesterday to probation or community service, while two others received similar sentences on Monday.

All of the members of the group, each of whom was indicted on a number of serious charges, including criminally negligent homicide, have pleaded guilty to lesser charges.

Only one of the men, William Katz, received jail time. Mr. Katz, 25, is an alumnus of SUNY Plattsburgh and the fraternity, Psi Epsilon Chi. He returned to the campus during the 10-day pledge period when the hazing occurred, and law enforcement officials considered him to be an instigator during the rite, in which an 18-year-old freshman, Walter Dean Jennings, died after being forced to drink large amounts of water.

Mr. Katz was sentenced to one year in jail after pleading guilty to the charges of hazing and coercion, both misdemeanors. Three fraternity members were sentenced to 15 days in jail, but that sentence would be voided upon the defendants' participation in an educational video on hazing or in community service.

The only defendant not yet sentenced is Jeffrey Meyer, who pleaded guilty in October to hazing and disorderly conduct. His hearing is scheduled for Friday before Judge Kevin K. Ryan of Clinton County Court.

The corporation that owned the fraternity house at the time of the death, led by a group of former fraternity members, will be sentenced on Thursday. Last month, the corporation pleaded guilty to one charge of criminal facilitation.

Separate charges against the corporation's chairman of the board of directors, Kevin E. Jones, who is a lawyer with the New York State Department of Labor, were dismissed by Judge Ryan in early December.

Two of the defendants sentenced yesterday - Jonathan Bernius and Michael West - each received three years of probation and 250 hours of community service. The third, Patrick Stasiukiewicz, is among the three fraternity members who received a 15-day jail sentence that would be voided, in his case, upon completing community service.

Survey: Freshmen more political -- and more conservative

By Greg Toppo
USA TODAY

After 35 years of decline, political interest among young people is on the rise, a wide-ranging survey of U.S. college freshmen finds.

Credit the contested 2000 presidential election and 9/11, says Linda Sax of the University of California-Los Angeles, who directs The American Freshman annual survey.

In the newest edition, which was released today, 34% of freshmen surveyed last fall say it's important to keep up with politics, continuing a three-year uptick that began just months after the Florida recount and weeks before the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

Until then, interest in politics had been dropping for 35 years.

Sax says it was the 2000 recount that attracted students. "It's not the politicians that interested them, it was the contested election," she says.

The Sept. 11 attacks, she says, taught students that "what used to be considered international affairs has a real connection on how they live their lives."

Still, modern kids' political engagement pales next to that of the freshman class of 1966, the survey's first subjects, 60% of whom said it was "essential or very important" to keep up with politics.

Since then, the survey shows, students' political views also have shifted to the right. Liberals still outnumber conservatives, but just barely: 24% say they hold liberal political views; 21% call themselves conservatives.

The percentage of liberals has nose-dived from its high of 38% in 1971. The percentage of conservative students, as low as 14% after Richard Nixon's second presidential inauguration in 1973, has hovered near the 20% mark since 1981 and Ronald Reagan's first term. Then, as now, the largest group by far remained students who call their political views "middle-of-the-road."

Politics aside, the survey shows that young people's lives have changed a bit since the 1960s:

* A larger proportion of students now say they've recently attended a church service -- 80% vs. 69%. But more also say they have no religious preference.

* The percentage of students focused on "being very well off financially" has risen sharply, from 42% in 1966 to 74% in 2003, while the percentage saying it's important to develop "a meaningful philosophy of life" has dropped by more than half, from 86% in 1967 to 39% in 2003.

* 45% of students in 2003 say they've drunk beer in the past year, down from 69% in 1966; only 6% say they've smoked cigarettes, down from 15% in 1966.

"It's a more conservative generation," says Paul Houston of the American Association of School Administrators.

"They just don't do things that are dangerous to themselves."

They also earn higher grades, seemingly with less work. In 2003, 23% of students said their average grade in high school was an A or A+. In 1966, only 7% of students earned mostly A's or A+s.

Though statistics for study time go back only to the mid-1980s, students these days seem to study less than their predecessors. In 1987, the first time UCLA researchers asked about work habits, 47% of freshmen said they studied six or more hours in a typical week during their last year of high school. That group has shrunk to 34%.
